

DESIGN BRIEF OFCOURSE

COMPANY NAME: OFCOURSE

PROJECT GOALS: Redesign a website using HTML/CSS for a local small business, working with a stakeholder and target users who will inform the design.

PROBLEM: The owner of OFCOURSE feels that his brand became more known for just one product, which was the most popular product, “Pair of Dice” t-shirt. Other t-shirts/products don’t get marketed well enough.

SOLUTION: Redesign the website for clothing brand OFCOURSE to improve aesthetic/usability. The website could use more content relating to the brand.

TIMELINE: June 25, 2020 - July 2, 2020

OFCOURSE started in 2009 with the love of San Diego neighborhoods. The brand utilizes clever word play and design on graphic print tees.

OWNER'S WANTS

Tap into other communities that he personally associates with (Biking community, car community.)

The “Pair of Dice” t-shirt (the most popular product that’s sold out) is a play on the famous SD neighborhood Paradise Hills

BIO: Michael is a junior at San Diego State University studying business mangament. He has an interest in photography and the outdoors. Michael spends a lot of his time at the beach, hiking the local trails, and going on bike rides with his partner.

DAILY ROUTINE: Michael wakes up early every morning to go on his daily jog around the neighborhood before quickly starting his day at SDSU. Michael goes to his work four times a week where he works at a bike shop and helps people learn more about biking.

PAINPOINTS: Michael loves expressing himself through the use of fashion, and he's currently trying to incorporate a sense of his own style in his outfits whenever he is out and about.
