For this assignment, I got my picture taken and decided i belonged in a matrix style world. I centered myself as a video game title with the discs flying towards me. Then i put that in a frame like a computer monitor.

This piece is a continuation of the assignment before it, raster. I misunderstood the assignment and build on something I already made. I actually like the way it turned out after the fact. I added a fun little character and some sticky notes telling me to do my homework. Mirroring my real life

In this project, I made a bunny head for a band I am in named Limewire. I was inspired by all of the old flash movies I would watch on Newgrounds as a kid. Here, I made a fun little loop to accompany my music.
